Regional Reconciliation Committee History

We are part of the Reconciliation movement in Saskatchewan. Rhett Sangster, Reconciliation Coordinator with the Office of the Treaty Commissioner, is working with us and other communities with reconciliation committees.

This Regional Reconciliation Committee first came together in January, organized by Great Plains College, the City of Warman and the Office of the Treaty Commissioner. An email was sent to individuals, organizations, businesses and elected officials, inviting them to join a committee that focuses on reconciliation and the Calls to Action. Our committee is growing, with over forty representatives from communities including Warman, Martensville, One Arrow First Nation, Dalmeny, Batoche, Corman Park, Osler, and Mistawasis First Nation. This includes organizations such as Mennonite Central Committee, Wanuskewin, the Prairie Spirit School Division, Saskatoon Regional Economic Development Authority, the RCMP, churches, the Federated Co-op Limited, among others. Our committee is growing and we welcome interested individuals to join us. To date, we have met in Warman, Osler and One Arrow First Nation, Dalmeny, Martensville, at Wanuskewin and Duck Lake.

During our first meeting, the committee identified educational opportunities we felt were necessary to begin our journey.

- Introductory lesson on Canada's history and the Truth and Reconciliation Commission's Calls to Action, presented by Annie Battiste, speaker with the Office of the Treaty Commissioner's Speakers Bureau.
- Residential school survivor presentation. Cultural Advisor Gilbert Kewistep shared his experience attending Muscowequan Indian Residential School and his healing journey during an evening presentation with the committee and community members.
- The KAIROS Blanket Exercise. The committee members learned about Canada's history through an interactive activity, the KAIROS Blanket Exercise, arranged by the Mennonite Central Committee.

We have identified principles and objectives for the committee and outlined best practice for working together. The committee has agreed that we will use this information to establish a declaration. The committee naming and declaration signing processes will be defined at a later date.

For the upcoming year, the committee has agreed to host educational events in our communities. This event, Rural Reconciliation: An Educational Gathering, is an event created to meet the objectives of this committee. The committee relied upon the Office of the Treaty Commissioner to bring together educational content for and promote this activity.

For more information, please contact committee coordinator, Robin Bendig at robinb@greatplainscollege.ca.

OTC Factsheet The Indian Act 1876

-Federal Government enacted the Indian Act in 1876 to regulate and control most aspects of First Nations people's lives but no First Nations people were involved in the development or implementation.

There is no direct link between the Indian Act and the Treaties.
The Indian Act was not discussed during any Treaty negotiations.
There have been some amendments but the Indian Act is still in place today and is the direct descendant of the original 1876 Act.

Some of the impacts of the Indian Act on First Nations people: Loss of culture, traditions and languages. Loss of sovereignty, freedom, lifestyles. Loss of traditional leadership and membership. Discrimination against women and their children. Loss of identity.

> The Indian Act of 1876 was NOT a part of Treaty

What was the goal of the Indian Act?

To civilize and assimilate First Nations people into non-Aboriginal society. "Our object is to continue until there is not a single Indian in Canada that has not been absorbed into the body politic and there is no Indian question" -Duncan Campbell Scott - Superintendent General of Indian Affairs 1920.

Many view the Indian Act as the greatest obstacle to the implementation of Treaties.

The Indian Act...

-created economic barriers inconsistent with the Spirit and Intent of Treaties. -rigidly controlled use of reserve land and sale of crops, timber and minerals. -prohibited First Nations people from selling their agricultural and other produce without a permit from their Indian agent

-contained provisions to strip First Nations people of their Indian status through the process of "enfranchisement" (deemed not to be an Indian with the meaning of the Indian Act or any statute of law)

-enfranchised the children and wives of enfranchised men.

-took away a woman's birthright as a First Nation with treaty rights if she married a non-Indian (amended in 1985 as Bill C-31).

-banned cultural ceremonies

-made it an offence to solicit or give money to First Nations for any legal counsel against the Federal Crown.

-imposed a new elective system of government for Chiefs and Headmen making traditional systems illegal.

Office of the Treaty Commissioner

Treaties vs the Indian Act

Treaty: Treaties are created between = *sovereign nations*based on mutual respect, brother-to-brother relations and living together peacefully. Indian Act: The Indian Act was unilaterally enacted the same year that Treaty 6 was signed. The Act is paternalistic and imposed several restrictions on First Nations people without their consent

Treaty: Treaties clearly stated that the two nations were to have peaceful relations and were to continue their ways of life Indian Act: Banned cultural ceremonies, restricted First Nations people from freely moving over the land and controls every aspectof First Nations people.

Treaty: Treaties are nation-to-nation agreements and First Nations people would remain sovereign and self-governing.

Treaty: Outlined a relationship of how the two nations would work together

based on mutual reciprocity, respect and brother-to-brother relations.

Indian Act: Made First Nations people*wards of the state*. Essentially not allowing sovereign nations to be sovereign but rather to be controlled.

Indian Act:

Created reserves and the pass system which made it illegal for First Nations people to travel freely. First Nations people were restricted to the reserve and unable to take part in government, business or education decisions

Indian Act: A policy to "civilize and assimilate" First Nations people.

TREATY MEDAL

Treaty making was full of traditional and cultural practises of both the First Nations and the Crown. To understand Treaties, one must appreciate the treaty-making process and therefore the significance of the symbols, and the symbolisms of the actions of the treaty partners. The smoking of the pipe is more than a symbol of peace and friendship, but a solemn oath with the Creator (God) as witness. The use of the pipestem and the use of one of the 4 the sacred medicines, tobacco, confirmed the commitments of both treaty partners; the Crown and the First Nations people.

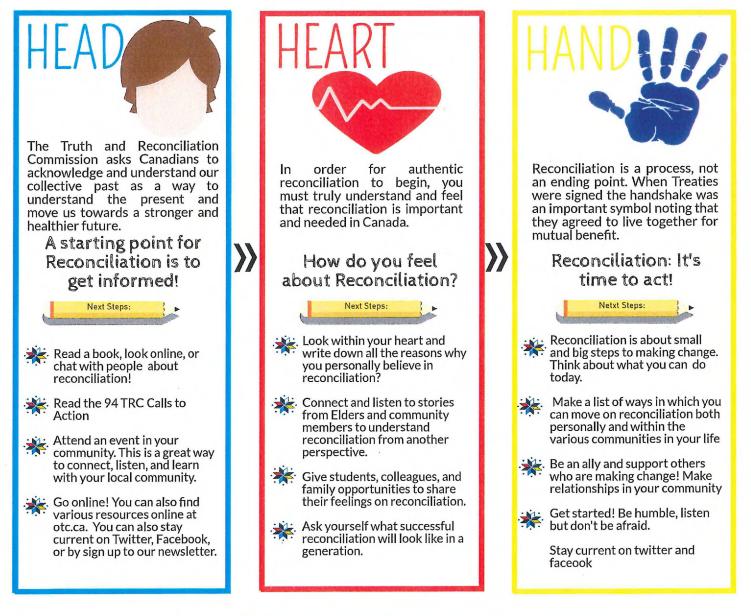

RECONCILIATION WHERE WILL YOU START?

prespondence D²

Reconciliation is about exploring the past and choosing to build a better future. Many people do not know where to start in this overwhelming process. This quick graphic is meant to be a general guide to help people find where to start the conversation. Reconciliation is about understanding each other, building trust, and creating a better future for us all. We are all Treaty people and we all have a role in reconciliation.

Misconceptions and Facts

Treaty-making was a complex and sacred process. Interpretations of the treaties vary due to the differing worldviews of the participating nations. Over time several misconceptions have developed in our society about what the treaties provide and how they were intended to be interpreted and implemented. Some of the most common misconceptions and the facts associated with them are listed in the chart below.

Misconceptions	Facts
Treaties are simple land transactions	The treaties are permanent, legal binding, solemn agreements between the crown and the First Nations people of Canada. In addition to the land, the treaties create a fundamental political relationship, establishing obligations and expectations on both sides. This relationship included the principles of peaceful co-existence and mutual benefit.
Treaties have no relevance today: they are part of the past.	In 1982, when the Constitution was repatriated, Section 35 recognized and affirmed existing treaty rights. Like other rights and freedoms that all Canadians enjoy, treaty rights are guaranteed by the Canadian Constitution which is the primary law of the land. We all live under the rule of law, so treaties must be honoured. There is no expiration date on the treaties; they are intended to be enduring. The leaders who negotiated the treaties spoke about the "children yet unborn" because they wanted the agreement to reflect the changing realities for the generations to come.
Treaties benefit only First Nations people	The treaties benefit all Canadians because they offer a unique foundation to build a harmonious future for all Canadian people. Prior to the turn of the last century, both First Nations people and the Crown/Government of

Treaty Misconceptions and Facts

	Canada saw treaties as a viable means of defining how everyone could live together for the good of all.
The written text of treaty is all that a person needs to understand treaties.	While the Government of Canada relied on written documents, First Nations people relied on oral traditions regarding the "spirit and intent" of the treaties. First Nations people believe the written documents do not capture the spirit and intent from the First Nations' perspectives.
First Nations leaders did not understand the treaty process because they were uneducated.	At the time of the treaty signing, the First Nations leaders who bargained the terms of the treaties, were formidable negotiators and understood how the treaty rights and benefits would affect the future of their people.
First Nations people did not have civilized societies and when the Europeans came to North America, they taught the indigenous people how to survive in this environment.	First Nations people had well developed societies with their own forms of commerce, government, education, spirituality, technologies, etc., with a similar conceptual base. The First Nations people lived in harmony with nature for thousands of years, making them perfect environmentalists. They taught the Europeans essential survival skills because the newcomers found it difficult to exist in the harsh conditions; in fact, some would not have stayed or survived if it hadn't been for the First Nations people.
Treaties are a thing of the past or "frozen in time."	Treaties are living agreements and were meant to last as long as the sun shines and the rivers flow.
Treaties gave newcomers full access to resources.	When the treaties were agreed to the First Nations people agreed to share the land only to the depth of the plough.
Only First Nations people are treaty people.	All people in Saskatchewan are treaty people. A treaty person is anyone who benefits from treaty agreements in Saskatchewan. Beneficiaries of the five numbered treaties live, make a living, and enjoy a way of life on the land shared through treaty-making. The treaties are intended to provide benefits for succeeding generations. Today all residents in Saskatchewan continue to benefit from treaties.

First Nations people don't pay tax.	Many First Nations people live in urban areas and off-reserve. First Nations people are only exempt from paying tax if they live, work and make purchases on-reserve.
First Nations people get a free education.	Education was a promise made in the treaties. However, due to funding limitations, this promise has not been fully honoured. First Nations people wanting to attend post-secondary institutions must apply for funding from their First Nation and are not guaranteed funding for their educational endeavours.

From: Saskatchewan Government and General Employees' Union

On October 9, 2018, a moratorium on the relocation of liquor store permits in Saskatchewan was lifted. This allows companies or individuals to buy out an existing liquor retailer and replace it with an entirely new liquor store within the same community. In many cases, these new liquor stores will be owned by large, private companies. In your community, there is one permit that could be converted into a large liquor retailer.

There are already reports that major companies are buying out small off-sales, intending to replace them with much larger full-line liquor stores.

Currently, there are 657 liquor retail permittees in Saskatchewan, each of whom is now available to sell out to any interested buyer. The provincial government has suggested in recent media reports that even more could become available in the near future. We firmly believe that large liquor retailers' main motivation is profit, and they often do not consider the societal harms an over influx of alcohol in a community can. cause.

If you are concerned about the effect that these changes to liquor retailing could have on your community, there are two primary ways a municipality can restrict or oppose the proliferation of these stores.

These options have been reviewed and provided by legal counsel for SGEU.

Objection to a Permit

Where a retail store is sold, the purchaser is required to apply for a new permit. Before that permit may be issued, according to the Alcohol and Gaming Regulation Act, the applicant must give notice of its application, in a newspaper published in the community, over a two-week period.

Any person(s) is entitled to file a written objection to a permit application during that two-week period. The objection must clearly state the grounds for objecting, and the objector bears the onus of establishing that a permit should not be granted. A permit may be denied based on any reason other than competition within the beverage alcohol industry. The factors involved in granting permits include the suitability of premises and the character of the applicant.

When an objection is filed, the Liquor and Gaming Licensing Commission may hold a hearing to decide whether to grant a permit. These hearings are open to the public, and offer an opportunity for applicants and objectors to speak. With the permission of the Commission, you may be able to participate in a hearing even if you have not filed a written objection.

Zoning in Your Community

A city or municipality has the authority, under Section 8 of either the Cities Act or the Municipalities Act, to pass bylaws governing businesses, including retail liquor stores. Among other types of restrictions, a city or municipality may:

- Divide businesses, including retail liquor stores, into different classes;
- Determine whether a class of business, including a class of retail liquor store, is entitled to operate at all, or limit the number of businesses in that class;
- Regulate the proximity of retail liquor stores to one another or to other types of buildings; and
- Specify the terms and conditions which a development permit for a retail liquor store location will be granted or refused.

A bylaw may be passed by a city or municipality at any time, and will have the effect of governing the future development of retail liquor stores.

We trust you will find this information useful, should you, as a council, decide to consider objecting to, or limiting the proliferation of large full-line alcohol retailers in your community.

Sincerely,

Bob Stadnichuk Bargaining Unit Chair Retail & Regulatory Sector

Mayor and Councilors

This is a letter to voice my concerns about the trains coming through our town. Namely the large number of oil cars passing by close to our town office, Library, Police station and many dwellings located close to the tracks.

That trains are needed is a given and the fact that most towns built close to the tracks is not the fault of the Railroad companies, however back when this all started there were only a few freight cars being hauled at a low speed.

We now see trains passing through our Towns and cities pulling upwards to one hundred Oil cars.

With the disastrous train wreck in Lac Megantic in our recent history I feel we should be strongly voicing our concerns to the powers that be as it is possible more such disasters will happen. There are many derailments each year and fortunately they are mostly in Rural areas (So Far). My question is shouldn't someone start an action to see if something can be done about this concern. I am thinking many other Towns, Villages and Cities could be contacted to see if some kind of action can be taken to the Federal and Provincial Governments and to the Railroad Companies.

The Federal Government of the day seems to have an issue with Pipelines but that does not mean they are right. Perhaps if they were to receive enough complaints from towns and cities they might have to change their thinking. Change can happen but not if everyone sits back and says nothing.

This is a very dangerous situation and should not be ignored.

The simple answer of course is Pipelines to transport our Oil, A much safer solution.

Freeing up the Railways to carry Grain and other important commodities.

Many times I along with others have to wait for these exceptionally long trains to pass through our town blocking both of our main crossings. In the event of an emergency we just have to sit and wait.

As a concerned citizen of this fine town I find it frustrating to just sit here and wait for a disaster to happen that could have been avoided if some action had been taken to correct this Tragedy waiting to happen!

Thank You for your attention to my concerns. I am sure I speak for the majority of our residents Dalmeny.

Dear Sir or Madam:

The Government of Saskatchewan supports intermunicipal cooperation and regional planning as an important way for communities to facilitate growth and development. When executed to its full potential, regional planning offers an effective means to build capacity, achieve mutual goals between neighbouring communities, and create opportunities to deliver costshared services and infrastructure.

You are participating in a planning district established under The Planning and Development Act, 2007. There are currently 34 planning districts incorporating 171 municipalities, 2 First Nations, and 1 Regional Park Authority. The Ministry of Government Relations is hosting a two-day forum to help build capacity to advance regional planning in Saskatchewan. This forum will occur on December 11 and 12, 2018 in Saskatoon. An outline containing details is attached for your information. Please contact Jenna Schroeder, Director of Regional Planning at jenna.schroeder@gov.sk.ca if you have any additional questions regarding the forum.

Please confirm your attendance via email by November 30, 2018, to Margaret Folk at margaret.folk@gov.sk.ca. There is limited seating for the event so we encourage you to register early. A detailed agenda will be distributed closer to the event.

Thank you for the effort you are making to advance regional planning in your community. I look forward to working with you at this forum.

Sincerely,

Ralph Leibel, RPP, MCIP Executive Director

- Build municipal sector capacity
- Achieve mutual goals between neighbouring communities
- Create opportunities to deliver cost-shared services and infrastructure

Purpose

This two-day event will gather district planning commissions (DPCs) and other regional planning groups across Saskatchewan to share stories, best practices, and information from a variety of ministries, communities, and organizations. This will help build capacity to advance regional planning.

Who should attend?

This forum is for any community or organization with an interest in intermunicipal cooperation or regional planning. Potential attendees include:

- Chairpersons and member of DPCs
- Elected officials, administrators, planners
- First Nations and Métis representatives
- · Government ministries and agencies working with municipalities on regional projects

What will be included at the forum?

Day 1 of the forum will feature a combination of speakers, short presentations, and an open house with tradeshow-style stations. Stations will give attendees information needed to advance regional planning in their community. Day 2 of the forum will feature facilitated exercises and discussion on how a community can move forward with regional initiatives.

How do I register?

To register, please email Margaret Folk at margaret.folk@gov.sk.ca by November 30, 2018. Pre-registration is required.
